

Erika Liliedahl is a Senior Analyst on the Evidence Team at the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) where she works on evidence-based policymaking and coordinating evaluation as a tool to improve government-wide effectiveness. Prior to joining OMB in 2015, Erika held several policy and evaluation roles at the U.S. Department of Labor, including as a Senior Evaluation Specialist in the Chief Evaluation Office. Before her Federal career, Erika had extensive experience working at multiple national non-profits, including overseeing funding allocations, implementation studies, and performance management of human service and community development programs. Erika earned her Master of Public Policy from Georgetown University and a B.S. in mathematics and economics from Rockhurst University, with a certification in nonprofit management.